JOURNAL DESCRIPTION

Labour and Social Security Journal is the oldest – published since 1959 – Polish journal dedicated to legal and social aspects of:

- individual and collective labour law, including other forms of employment,
- social security and health insurance,
- employment, including employment of foreigners and handicapped people,
- personnel policy,
- working conditions,
- social matters.

The LSSJ is a monthly magazine published and distributed in paper as well as electronic version.

Rules for reviewing publications in the Labour and Social Security Journal

The Editorial Team of the journal carries out initial review of the submitted texts, examining the alignment of the article's subject matter with the scientific profile of the journal as well as the compliance with editorial requirements.

The texts that are approved in such a manner shall be submitted to further review by two experts from the list of academics cooperating with the Editorial Board. The review process is based upon the anonymity of both the author and reviewers (double-blind review process). Reviewers evaluate the text and fill in the relevant review form.

The review has an opinion-forming function, which means that the final decision on accepting the text for printing is made by the Editorial Team.

Studies on labour law and social policy

ISSN 1429-9585
e-ISSN 2544-4654

The journal is willing to publish:

- individual papers
- whole panels

JOURNAL DESCRIPTION

Studies on labour law and social policy is an annual journal published by the Chair of Labour Law and Social Policy of the Jagiellonian University since 1993. Until 2016 the journal was published annually, and since 2017 it has been issued as a quarterly 4 times a year.

The journal addresses the issues of individual and collective labour law, social security law and legal problems of social policy. It provides a forum for exchange of opinions for persons interested in the labour law from all academic centres in Poland. During its 20-year history, the English version - the Yearbook of Polish Labour Law and Social Policy - was also published many times

The journal is a member of the prestigious International Association of Labour Law Journals, comprised of the world's top labour law periodicals.

The Board of Editors conduct preliminary verification of the paper. The text is reviewed internally with a particular emphasis on the consistency with the profile of the journal. Then, in case of a positive evaluation, the text is checked against the formatting guidelines of the journal.

Next the Board of Reviewers designates two reviewers for each paper and forwards these proposals to the Board of Editors.

A paper can be prepared in Polish or English (British spelling).

Social Insurance. Theory and practice

ISSN 1731-0725

The journal is willing to publish:

- individual papers (also as a separate issue dedicated to them)
- whole panels (also as a separate issue dedicated to them)

JOURNAL DESCRIPTION

The journal is issued quarterly and provides a forum for the exchange of views amongst experts on the implementation of the statutory task of the Polish Social Insurance Institution i.e. popularizing knowledge about social insurance, as well as developing, organizing and disseminating academic knowledge derived from current, yet in-depth academic and expert analysis on changes within the insurance system, on the labour market and in the economy itself (including a forecasting of the future).

The magazine was intended primarily for the academics, practitioners, the teaching staff of universities and students, social activists, employees of public administration, local government, social and employment offices, but it is equally directed towards those who want to broaden their knowledge in these fields and who are familiar with social insurance, social security and social policy issues.

Hence, the Polish Social Insurance Institution wishes to become a partner and initiator of the discussion on social insurance. It also wants to provide access to data for academia in order for scholars to interpret it.

At the same time we hope that "Ubezpieczenia Społeczne. Teoria i praktyka" will become a significant addition to the knowledge, research and commentaries contained in other important journals devoted to social insurance law, social policy, economics and the labour market.

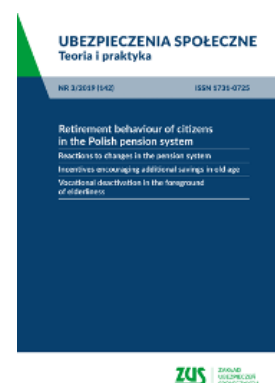

According to the communique of the Minister of Education and Science of 1 December 2021 regarding the list of scientific journals and peer-reviewed materials from international conferences together with the assigned number of points, the journal "Ubezpieczenia Społeczne. Teoria i praktyka" received 40 points (item No. 30279).

International Journal of Comparative Labour Law and Industrial Relations

ISSN: 0952-617X

The IJCLLIR would be happy to consider individual papers presented at LLRN6, which should be submitted in the normal way to ijcllir@gmail.com.

The IJCLLIR would also be interested in publishing one or more thematic issues dedicated to specific panels at the conference. If you are organising a panel and would like your session to be considered for this, please send the details to the Editor-in-Chief, anne.davies@law.ox.ac.uk.

In either case, please bear in mind that the focus of the journal is on international (or regional) or comparative labour law, so papers or proposals dealing solely with the law in one country are unlikely to be accepted. Panels in which each paper deals with a different jurisdiction or jurisdictions are welcome provided that the organiser is willing to prepare an editorial introduction drawing out the comparisons between the papers.

JOURNAL DESCRIPTION

Published four times a year in English, the International Journal of Comparative Labour Law and Industrial Relations is an essential source of information and analysis for labour lawyers, academics, judges, policy-makers and others.

The Journal publishes original articles in the domains of labour law (broadly understood) and industrial relations. Articles cover comparative and international (or regional) analysis of topical issues, major developments and innovative practices, as well as discussions of theoretical and methodological approaches.

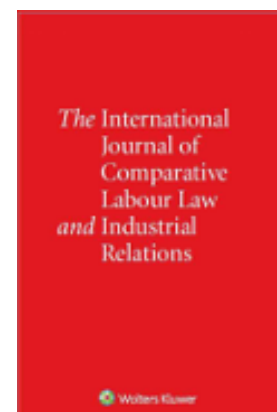

The Journal adopts a double-blind peer review process after initial checks by the editors. A distinguished editorial team, with the support of an International Advisory Board of eminent scholars from around the world, ensures a continuing high standard of scientific research dealing with a range of important issues.

Italian Labour Law e-Journal (ILLeJ)

ISSN 1561-8048

ILLeJ is interested in preparing a thematic issue dedicated to a specific panel;

Deadline for submitting texts: October 15, 2023

JOURNAL DESCRIPTION

Italian Labour Law e-Journal is an open-access peer-reviewed Journal aiming at the advancement of comparative studies on current labour law topics.

Founded in 1999 by prof. Franco Carinci, Italian Labour Law e-Journal (ISSN 1561-8048) was the first electronic journal on labour law in Italy. The journal suspended its publications in 2009. In 2019 the Journal resumed publications under the direction of Emanuele Menegatti, with a semi-annual frequency. The journal is published in English on a biannual basis. Each issue includes a main section dedicated to a specific theme, and a miscellaneous reserved to spontaneous submissions.

The journal adopts a double-blind peer review process, aimed at verifying that each contribution for which publication is requested, corresponds to the Journal's qualitative parameters of originality, methodological correctness and scientific validity; that it complies with the relevant ethical standards and that it is of interest for the Journal's objectives.

Articles should be submitted following the journal submission procedure outlined at the following link: <https://illej.unibo.it/about/submissions>

Requirements:

- The submission has not been previously published, nor is it before another journal for consideration (or an explanation has been provided in Comments to the Editor).
- The submission file is in Microsoft Word document file format (.docx).
- Where available, DOIs or URLs for the references have been provided.
- The text is 1.15 spaced; uses a 12-point font (Garamond); employs italics, rather than underlining (except with URL addresses); and all illustrations, figures, and tables are placed within the text at the appropriate points, rather than at the end.
- The text adheres to the stylistic and bibliographic requirements outlined in the Author Guidelines, which is found in Submissions
- The publication authorization & disclaimer form has been compiled, ready to be uploaded in the step 4 of the submission process.

Spring issue: end of December

Autumn issue: end of June

Papers should be submitted to: takenori.mishiba@gmail.com

JOURNAL DESCRIPTION

This journal provides immediate open access to its content on the principle that making research freely available to the public supports a greater global exchange of knowledge.

The journal publishes scientific articles in the field of social sciences, discipline: legal sciences. It publishes articles in Polish and English in the thematic field of labour law and social policy.

The journal was created in 2021, and the first issue will be published in November 2022. Two issues will be published each year – in May and in November. It is published in English. All articles are double blind reviewed by experts in the subject area of the article.

The name of journal reflects its focus on understanding how law and other modes of regulation do, and can best, address the wide array of hazards facing everyone who carries out work, or who is otherwise affected by work. The Journal's aim is to advance academic research and to inform policy debate and decision-making in all aspects of work health and safety regulation, including prevention, compensation and rehabilitation/return to work.

The Journal is interested in submissions that include analysis of work health and safety regulatory developments in a single country, particularly those that have transnational implications or that relate to potential international trends; doctrinal (legal analytical) comparisons addressing common work health and safety issues across two or more countries; empirical analyses; case studies; analysis of practical, theoretical, methodological and historical issues in comparative or transnational work health and safety regulation; and discussion of economic, social, or cultural aspects of work health and safety regulation and/or the 'transferability' of legal rules or policy approaches. Multidisciplinary and interdisciplinary perspectives on work health and safety regulation – including from law, occupational health, medicine, sociology, regulatory studies, industrial relations, psychology, social policy, criminology, socio-legal studies and history – are welcome.

European Employment Law Cases (EELC)

ISSN: 1877-9107

The journal is willing to publish:

- individual papers in (short) article form.

EELC is happy to consider individual papers presented at LLRN6, provided that they cover EU employment law topics and should be of interest for employment law practitioners throughout Europe (see the guidelines below).

Papers should be submitted to eelc@law.eur.nl. It is recommended to contact editors on beforehand.

JOURNAL DESCRIPTION

European Employment Law Cases (EELC) publishes mainly "case reports" and summaries of recent relevant judgments by the Court of Justice EU. The case reports are English language summaries of recent judgments by courts all over Europe on issues that can be relevant to practitioners of employment law, with commentaries both by the author and by lawyers from other countries. It can help if you know what the courts in other countries are doing.

Additionally, EELC is starting to publish short, practical articles on EU employment law matters.

Some examples of the topics covered: transfer of undertakings, discrimination (gender, age, disability, religion, etc.), working hours, maternity protection, fixed-term contracts, collective redundancies, privacy, paid leave, information and consultation, temporary agency work, free movement.

Publishing details

As general rules of thumb, the following guidelines apply:

- the magazine is mostly read by attorneys at law throughout the EU. We therefore aim for articles with a practical angle;
- articles should cover topics which are regulated by EU law (e.g. by regulations or directives) or highly relevant to multiple EU Member States (e.g. platform work, Covid-19, sustainability). See the list above for further inspiration, as well as the list on www.eelc-online.com (select 'subject');
- topics which are specific to individual Member States are not suitable, such as legislation on individual dismissals (without there being a relevant EU employment law dimension);
- articles should be of interest for readers of more than one EU Member State. Possible ideas would be to analyze how EU law works out in practice, or to compare legislation in various countries;
- our word limit is approx. 3000 words per article;

However, we have no problem deviating from these guidelines, provided that we have discussed this on beforehand. Please contact the editors (eelc@law.eur.nl).
